

Eleni Pastrapa

Laboratory Teaching Staff

Τηλ.: 210 9549263

e-mail: epastrapa (at) hua (dot) gr

Short Curriculum Vitae

Eleni Pastrapa is Laboratory Teaching Staff at the Department of Home Economics and Ecology of Harokopio University. She graduated of the Department of Home Economics and Ecology. Also, she has a master's degree with Honours in Sustainable Development and a Ph.D. of the Department of Home Economics and Ecology. She teaches the Economics Theory I, Economics and Economics of Health. Her research fields include economics, statistics, economic behavior of households and several aspects of entrepreneurship, local development and sustainability.

Publications

- Pastrapa E. and C. Apostolopoulos (2015), “Estimating Determinants of Borrowing: Evidence from Greece”, Journal of Family and Economic Issue, 36, pp. 210-223.
- Pastrapa, E.; Sdrali, D. and C. Apostolopoulos (2012), “A survey for determining consumer spending and borrowing of low households in the region of Eastern Macedonia and Thrace, Greece”, Sustainable agriculture and food production: adaptations to a changing social, economic and institutional environment, 11th biannual conference of the Hellenic Association of Agricultural Economists, Athens, Greece, pp. 357-371. [In Greek]
- Theodoropoulou H., Pastrapa, E. and D. Sdrali (2008), “Children's involvement in family business and towards consumers”, Assessing Information as Consumer Citizens, Proceedings of the fifth international conference of The Consumer Citizenship Network, Tallin, Estonia, 2008, eds. A. Klein and V. Thoresen, Hedmark: Høgskolen i Hedmark-CCN, pp. 196-205.
- Theodoropoulou, H. and E. Pastrapa (2006), “The socioeconomic integration of expatriates in the rural prefecture of Rodopi, Greece”, Changing European farming systems for a better future. New visions for rural areas, ed. H. Langeveld and N. Roling, Wageningen Academic Publishers, pp. 185.